Requirements for the Honors Program are:

- A written recommendation and statement of commitment to supervise the honors project by a Psychology Department faculty member. In this statement, the faculty supervisor should agree to hold a supervision meeting with the student each week during both semesters of the academic year, and should describe the support that will be provided to the student – such as assistance searching for relevant professional literature, consultation on design, data analysis, and report preparation, and use of a research lab with equipment needed to conduct the project. Part-time Psychology faculty are eligible supervisors, provided that they commit to supervise for the entire academic year.
- GPA of 3.5 in all upper-division coursework. Include transcripts with your application. (Unofficial transcripts are acceptable.)
- Senior standing in the University by Fall 2024 (at least 90 units completed).
- At least 12 units of upper division psychology coursework completed at SF State by Fall 2024.
- Completion of at least one upper-division research methods and/or statistics course with a grade of “B” or better before Fall 2024, or equivalent preparation for independent research. Applicants lacking research methods and/or statistics courses must describe their research preparation in detail.
- Submit a writing sample – an academic paper, such as a literature review, a research proposal, or a report you’ve written for a class. This must be a sample of your individual writing. Group reports are not acceptable.
- Statement of anticipated research topic, approved by your prospective faculty supervisor. (This should be no more than one page in length. A detailed proposal will be developed as part of the fall semester’s Honors work.)
